Introduction

NOTE: this handbook does not cover qualifying law degrees or other qualifications that only partially meet the technical knowledge requirements set out in the education standards. Applicants who have further academic study to complete in order to fully meet the technical knowledge requirements should contact an approved training provider to seek exemption for their qualification.

Our regulated activity includes overseeing the education, qualification and practice standards of Chartered Legal Executives who qualify with a right to practice independently in their specialist area.

In carrying out this work we focus education and training on requirements provided by qualifications and training providers, which ensures our competence standards are maintained.

Our education standards focus on:

- Knowledge and skills – having met the technical knowledge requirements defined in the education standards; and
- experience -undertaken a minimum of three years' qualifying employment; and
- competence - demonstrated competence in the work-based learning outcomes - a competence- based assessment assessed directly by CILEx Regulation

In order to become a qualified lawyer, authorised by CILEx Regulation, you will need to demonstrate that you have met all of the knowledge, skills, experience and competence elements which are set out in the CILEx Regulation education standards.

The standards are set out by legal specialism, so you will first need to decide which area of legal practice you intend to practice in and select the appropriate standard for you. These are:

[provide links to standards and accompanying handbooks]

- Civil Litigation & Advocacy
- Criminal Litigation & Advocacy
- Family Litigation & Advocacy
- Conveyancing
- Probate Practice
- Immigration
- Employment practice
- Business practice

If you do not want to work in one of these areas, then you will be able to obtain a general qualification as a Chartered Legal Executive. Information on the standards which apply to this route can be found at:

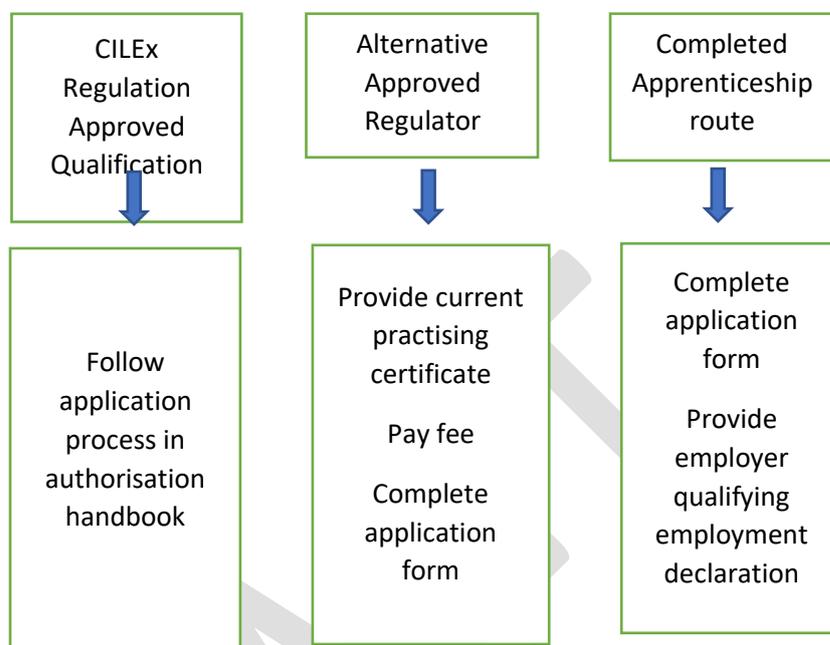

- General route

If you are an authorised person, recognised by another approved regulator, we will admit you as a Chartered Legal Executive in the relevant specialist area.

There are a number of ways in which you can be granted recognition of prior legal qualifications from the technical knowledge requirements to become a Chartered Legal

Executive in your specialist area, these are outlined below and are further explained in the subsequent sections of the handbook:

Outline of recognition of prior legal qualifications options:

How to have your legal qualifications recognised as part of becoming a Chartered Legal Executive

Introduction to the qualifications process at CILEx Regulation

Having chosen the specialist route that you would like to follow, you will need to demonstrate that you have the requisite knowledge & skills, experience and competence.

How CILEx Regulation assesses experience and competence can be found in the relevant specialist handbook (see links on previous page).

This handbook explains how CILEx Regulation will review the legal knowledge and skills that you have gained through your academic study and how this relates to the minimum knowledge and skills requirements that CILEx Regulation has defined for each specialism within the relevant handbook.

We call this the 'technical legal knowledge' requirements.

Recognition of legal knowledge and skills

To evidence your technical legal knowledge to CILEx Regulation as part of the authorisation process you must provide a certificate of successful completion of an accredited qualification

Approved qualifications:

CILEx Regulation approves legal qualifications which fully meet our technical knowledge requirements. A full list of approved qualifications can be found [\[here\]](#).

If your qualification is on the list of approved qualifications, then you can apply to become a Chartered Legal Executive in your specialist area by:

- Providing a certified copy of your qualification certificate
- Demonstrating your experience as required for your specialist area, the experience requirements are set out in the specialist handbooks [\[see link above\]](#)
- Completing the application form
- Paying the fee

If you are an authorised person of another approved regulator

If you are an authorised person with another approved regulator, we may be able to admit you to become a Chartered Legal Executive in your specialism without reassessment of knowledge & skills, experience and competence, subject to you meeting our pre-authorisation checks in relation to prior conduct.

If you would like to follow this route, please provide:

- Current practising certificate
- A completed application form
- Application fee (which will cover your 1st practising fee with CILEx Regulation if you are admitted).
